U.S. Treasury Releases Report on Supporting Organizations and Donor Advised Funds

Along with making significant changes to the rules for supporting organizations ("SOs") and donor advised funds ("DAFs") in the Pension Protection Act of 2006 (the "PPA"), Congress directed Treasury to conduct a study on the organization and operation of SOs and DAFs. On December 5, 2011, Treasury released its long-awaited report to Congress. The report suggests that the current treatment of SOs and DAFs is appropriate and did not recommend any changes. <http://www.treasury.gov/resource-center/tax-policy/Documents/Supporting-Organizations-and-Donor-Advised-Funds-12-5-11.pdf>

On November 29, 2011 The New York Jewish Week sponsored a Gala Dinner at Sotheby's, where it presented renowned journalists David Brooks and Ruth Gruber with the first Jewish Week Excellence in Journalism Awards. The event, attended by over 300 people, featured a private viewing of the Israeli Art collection, which was once a participant in FJC's fiscal sponsorship program, prior to its public exhibition.

The event raised funds to support The Jewish Week and its journalistic mission, as well as its educational, cultural and community-building programs. FJC-supported initiatives include: Community Forums with authors and newsmakers such as Christopher Hitchens, Jonathan Safran Foer, Allegra Goodman, Dani Shapiro and Roger Cohen. Fresh Ink, an online publication written by, and for, local high school students, which creates opportunities for young people interested in journalism to receive individual guidance and writing experience. Student internships. The Conversation, a unique project that brings together American Jews to talk about the future of Jewish life in this country and around the world. Write On For Israel, which trains a select group of high school students to become advocates for Israel through writing, broadcasting and public speakers.

Accepting her award, Ms. Gruber, 100, recalled the advice of famed photographer Edward Steichen to take pictures not with the eyes or hands but with the heart. She said all of her photojournalism and writing have been "from the heart."

Mr. Brooks, a New York Times columnist, spoke of his personal Jewish journey and of the role of newspapers in society. "The Jewish Week helps define Judaism in New York and gives the community a voice," he said, including "the unpleasant task of investigative journalism."
